Subject: Call for Abstracts for the Population Association of Korea Annual Conference 2012, Bexco, Busan

On behalf of the organizing committee, I am very pleased to inform you that the 2012 Annual Conference of Population Association of Korea (PAK) will be held in Bexco, Busan on September 7-8. The Conference will host both research and policy papers on various topics directly or indirectly related with population processes and consequences; topic examples including low fertility and population aging, international labour/marriage migration, worsening social disparities in health/mortality, urban growth in developed/developing societies, and demographic methods.

The organizing committee has decided to extend the call for abstract or intention to participate as presenter or discussant to the members of PAK's sister population associations (Thailand, Taiwan, and Japan) as well as PAK members. The Conference official language is Korean, but the organizing committee will prepare English-friendly sessions for those foreign participants. There will be a special symposium of "Marriage migration in Korea from a demographic perspective" as a plenary session on the first day. The Conference is co-hosted by the Statistics Korea and PAK. Please refer to the following Conference information for details.

With best regards,
Hangan Kim, Ph.D.
Chair, Organizing Committee
Vice President, Population Association of Korea
Professor of Sociology, Yeungnam University
